SPARK Your Interest

What is it like to be a TEACHER? Why is being a TEACHER considered one of the most respected professionals in the Philippines? What makes a teacher differently better than any other profession? What characterizes a teacher as a person and as a professional?

This Episode will provide you a chance to observe teachers in their workplace at school to answer the questions asked

TARGET Your Intended Learning

At the end of this episode, I must be able to:

- describe the personal qualities and competences of effective classroom teachers; and
- enumerate the professional characteristics of practicing teachers observed as based on the professional standards and code of ethics for the profession.

REVISIT the Learning Essentials

“My Teacher, My Hero” was a banner during the World Teachers’ Day celebration in the Philippines in the years past. Are Filipino teachers, real heroes? What do you think? Why?

My answer is YES! Here are my reasons.

Personal Qualities of Filipino Teachers

To be a teacher in the Philippines is a challenging profession. Teachers serve the country just like any other hero. To be a teacher requires a lot of personal and professional qualities. These qualities make an excellent Filipino teacher an exceptional professional.

First, the teacher must have innate qualities or attributes that are exemplary and are fitted to be a teacher. These are the natural tendencies of a person. Here are some of the qualities and attributes that distinctly characterize a teacher.

Episode 14-The Teacher as a PERSON and as a PROFESSIONAL

Not everyone has these qualities, hence not everyone can be a good teacher. As the old saying goes: “Teachers are born but good teachers are both born and made”

Professional Competences of Filipino Teachers

Going to teacher training institutions and earning a teaching degree mean developing a professional teacher like you. You can only become a professional teacher if you earn a degree to teach in either elementary level or high school level. You should also earn a license to teach by passing a licensure examination for teachers. While studying in college you are learning the ropes of becoming a professional teacher. You learn the content courses including the major or specialization and the professional courses including the pedagogy courses. Your professional courses include experiential learning courses that include Field Study 1, Field Study 2 and Teaching Internship. These are important in your preparation to become professional teachers.

So what are the professional competencies that every teacher should have? You will find these in the matrix that follow.

Professional Competencies of Filipino Teachers

Professional Competencies	What the teacher DOES
• Abides by the code of ethics for the profession	This teacher practices the rules and conduct of professional teachers.
• Masters the subject matter to be taught	This teacher masters and updates himself/herself with the subject matter content to be taught.
• Updates oneself on educational trends, policies, and curricula	This teacher keeps abreast with educational trends, policies, and curricula by taking up graduate studies, and attending seminars and workshops.
• Uses teaching methods to facilitate student learning	This teacher practices different ways of teaching appropriate to the learners and the subject matter
• Builds support network with parents and community	This teacher engages the cooperation of parents and stakeholders in educating the learners.
• Demonstrates knowledge, understanding of the characteristics and needs of the diverse learners	This teacher has substantial knowledge of the characteristics and needs of learners.
• Plans, prepares and implements school curriculum responsibly	This teacher plans, prepares, implements and innovates the day-to-day curriculum with the view in mind that learners will learn.
• Designs, selects and utilizes appropriate assessment strategies and tools	This teacher designs, selects and uses appropriate assessment tools for, as, and of learning.
• Provides a safe, secure, fair physical and psychological learning environment that supports learning.	This teacher arranges the classroom to provide a safe, secure psychological learning environment that supports and encourages learning.

Serves beyond the call of duty	This teacher does task and works even beyond the official time when needed.

So, it is not easy to become a professional teacher. The demand is great. A qualified professional teacher is like a HERO.

Now you are ready to identify if the enumerated characteristics are found among the teachers you are going to observe.

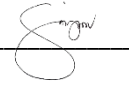

There are two observation activities in this Episode. Activity 1 will identify the Personal Characteristics of the Teacher and Activity 2 will identify the Professional Competencies of the Teacher.

g. Cooperative	Observe Interview	I have found out that the teacher is cooperative by working well with colleagues and involving students in classroom tasks. In the interview, she shared that she values teamwork because it makes both teaching and learning lighter and more effective.

Activity 2 will focus on the Professional Competencies of the Teacher. You may change your sample Teacher in Activity 1 with another teacher, or you can still observe the same teacher. In case you will not change your teacher to be observed the same teacher will be your sample for both Activity 1 and Activity 2. Aside from direct observation, you will also do a Survey in Activity 2.

Did you learn from your observation of the teacher? Now let us analyze the information that you have gathered.

Answer the following questions.

1. In Activity 1, what do you consider as the 3 most outstanding significant personal qualities of the teacher you chose as your case? Why do you consider these as outstanding?
 - a) Knowledgeable – I find this outstanding because the teacher can explain the lesson very clearly and answer students' questions with confidence. It shows that he/she is really prepared and committed to the subject.
 - b) Humble – I admire this because the teacher does not act superior to the students. Instead, he/she respects them and remains approachable, which makes learning feel more comfortable and open.
 - c) Cooperative – This stands out because the teacher works well not only with the students but also with fellow teachers. It shows that teaching is not just an individual job but a shared responsibility with others.

2. Which of these qualities do you have? Do you think you can fit as a good teacher someday? _____ Why? Describe yourself.

I think the quality that I already have is being cooperative. I always try to help and work with others because I believe learning is better when done together. With this, I do believe I can fit as a good teacher someday, because being cooperative also means I am willing to learn, listen, and adjust for the good of my students. I would describe myself as someone who is determined to improve and someone who values teamwork, which I know will help me grow in my future profession.

Good teachers are role models, whether in school, at home, or in the community. From the teachers that you had from elementary to college, did the personal qualities that they possess, help you learn better as a student?

Identify one personal characteristic of your model teacher that has made a great impact on your life as a learner. Reflect and describe how this quality influenced you.

Yes, I believe the personal qualities of my teachers from elementary up to college really helped me learn better and become a better version of myself. It's not just about the way they teach the lessons, but also the way they carry themselves as role models that shaped me as a student.

One personal characteristic that made a big impact on me came from my Grade 7 teacher, Ma'am Mabel Diaz. She was my TLE teacher during the 1st quarter, on the subject "Animal Production." Her patience really stood out to me because, as a student who was just starting to explore what a high school life was like, there were many times when I misbehaved. But no matter how many times I made mistakes or struggled to understand our lessons, she never showed frustration. Instead, she guided me and my classmates calmly and encouraged us to keep trying.

Her classroom felt like my comfort zone, a place where I could truly express myself. Even the way she scolded me when I misbehaved felt like she was my mother giving me a soft tap, a gentle physical discipline which I came to understand as her unique way of showing care. In her class, I also learned to appreciate nature, especially because we had a garden that we took care of back then. That experience gave me not only knowledge but also a deeper sense of connection to the environment.

The comfort I felt from her when I was in Grade 7 made me decide to take "Animal Production" again as my TLE subject in Grade 9, because I already knew she was going to be my teacher. All in all, she taught me many things, but the one I will never forget is her perseverance to push me to my limits. Although I sometimes felt I never really lived up to her expectations, I am still proud and deeply grateful that she became my teacher. From the bottom of my heart, I know that the patience, encouragement, and care she showed me have shaped the way I view learning and teaching today.

Because of her patience, as I grew up, I also learned to be more patient with myself whenever I didn't get something right away. It also taught me to be more understanding toward others, knowing that each person has their own pace in learning. This is something I want to carry with me not only as a student but also in the future when I become a teacher myself.

OBSERVATIONS OF TEACHING -LEARNING IN ACTUAL SCHOOL ENVIRONMENT

Episode 14-The Teacher as a PERSON and as a PROFESSIONAL

Analyze

Did you learn from your observation and interview about the teacher's professional competencies? Now let us analyze the data.

Answer the following questions

1. In Activity 2, do you consider the Teacher as a Professional Teacher? In what competencies is the teacher Strong? _____ Weak? _____ Doubtful? _____ Why?

Yes, I consider the teacher as a professional teacher because he is strong in teaching the subject matter with mastery, using varied methods, showing compassion, and also creating a safe and friendly classroom atmosphere. Although I did not see any specific weakness from him, I am somehow doubtful in him preparing curriculum plans since I was not able to fully observe it. Overall, the way he handles the subject, the students, and the classroom environment reflects his true commitment to his profession.

2. Did your answers to the survey form coincide with the answers of the co-teacher or head of the teacher you observed?

Why?

Yes, our answers coincided. It shows that me and Ma'am Zenyfe both observed the same professional qualities of the resource teacher, especially in how he handled the class with mastery and compassion. We also agreed that he used varied teaching strategies that made learning engaging and effective. This made me realize that good teaching practices are easily seen and felt, not just by students but also by fellow educators. I also think that our answers matched because we both based it on what we really observed inside the classroom and not just on assumptions.

As a future teacher, the results imply that I should always strive to be updated with new trends in education and try to bring more creativity and innovation in delivering my lessons. I realized that it's not enough to just know the subject matter or to teach it well, I also need to continuously grow, experiment with new approaches, and make my teaching more engaging for students because for me it is important to keep updated to the trend to make more connection with my students. At the same time, I should also maintain the qualities I admire in my resource teacher, like patience, compassion, and creating a safe classroom environment.

2. If all the teachers teaching today possess the professional characteristics as the teacher/teachers observed then learners will be

If all teachers today possess these professional characteristics, then all learners will be more motivated and confident in their studies. They will feel supported not only academically but also emotionally because they know their teachers care for them and they know that they have someone to lean on when they feel down. Learners will also grow in an environment that is inclusive and safe, which will help them reach their full potential. In the long run, I believe this would produce students who are not only knowledgeable but also responsible and ready to face real-life challenges.

Show here the artifacts of this Episode.

1. Short narrative about the teacher with a description of the personal qualities and professional characteristics that you have observed. You may request a picture from the teacher.

My Teacher, My Hero

From my observation, I realized that being a teacher is not just about knowing the subject matter that you are teaching, but also about having the right professional competence and personal qualities. I saw how important it is for a teacher to teach with not just mastery, but also compassion, while also creating a safe and friendly learning environment. The teacher I observed really show these qualities of a professional teacher by being knowledgeable, humble, and cooperative inside and out of the classroom. These traits of the teacher help the classroom to be more effective because students feel respected and guided, not just being taught.

I also noticed that personal qualities like being dignified, spiritual, determined, and simply being healthy are equally important as the teaching skills itself. They are not always seen directly in the lesson, but they show in the way a teacher interacts with the students and their co-teachers. For example, humility and cooperation make a big difference in creating harmony inside the classroom and even outside in other activities.

As a future teacher, these observations remind me that I need to keep improving myself, not only in terms of content knowledge but also in the way I carry myself and treat others around me. Personally, as I look at myself right now, I think I am very far from becoming the kind of teacher I want in the future. All I'm thinking about right now is to be like a sponge and absorb all the lessons that will help me become a better version of myself. If I can combine professional competence with good personal qualities, I believe I can become an effective and respected teacher someday. It is not easy, but I know that teaching is really more than a job, it is a responsibility, a calling, and a way of shaping the lives of learners.

Overall, I learned that the teacher's strength comes from both knowledge and character. And if all teachers today had the same qualities I observed, then students would truly enjoy learning and become more motivated to reach their goals in life.

OBSERVATIONS OF TEACHING -LEARNING IN ACTUAL SCHOOL ENVIRONMENT

Episode 14-The Teacher as a PERSON and as a PROFESSIONAL

(Picture of the Teacher Observed)

Narrative (about the personal and professional characteristics of the teacher)

From what I have observed, the teacher truly embodies what it means to be a professional educator, someone who teaches not only with the mind but also with the heart. He showed a strong sense of dedication and patience, making sure every student understood the lesson before proceeding to his discussion. What I admired most was how calm and composed he remained even when students got a bit noisy. Instead of scolding, he handled the situation with kindness and understanding, which I think made him close to his students and respect him even more.

His professionalism was also very evident in how he prepared his lessons, everything was organized, from the materials to the flow of discussion. Personally, I was inspired by his humility and warmth toward his students. He treated them like his younger siblings, guiding them not only academically but also in values and discipline.

As I reflect on my observation, I realized that being a teacher is more than just teaching lessons, it's about touching lives. Watching him made me think about the kind of teacher I want to become in the future, someone who inspires, understands, and continues to grow no matter how many challenges come my way. A teacher that not just teach, but someone that can touch the souls of his students.
